

General

People keep saying that insurance companies don't like sick people, which is totally false. Sick people are fine, they don't cost us anything – it's being forced to CARE for sick people that the problem

Don't give the government your money! We are happy to keep gouging you instead.

We like the current system: we get to insure the healthy and offload the sick to taxpayers.

How so? When any one of the 47 million uninsured Americans need care they go to the emergency room - at 5 times the cost of a doctor's visit! - Taxpayers are already footing that bill nice and quietly everyday. And hospitals get to charge full market rates while we only insure wealthy, healthy customers. It's a win-win! Well, maybe not for taxpayers...

Some people say the healthcare system is broken. But it works for us. Just like Congress.

Healthcare is a commodity, not a right.

You want insurance AND a house?! And you call ME greedy?

You think you pay a lot for healthcare? For every congressman, I've got six lobbyists on my payroll. And they don't come cheap! Especially when all SEVEN of them have their hands out!.

Public Option

Medicare is 10 times more efficient than private insurance. They don't have to do any marketing, only 3% of their costs are paperwork, and they don't pay out huge CEO salaries. The public option will just be more of the same. Where is the profit in that?"

We don't mind competing with the government -- on the golf course. Matter of fact, I just took Max Baucus out for a game just last week.

Pre-existing Conditions

We're happy to accept people with pre-existing conditions: health, wealth, and youth.

Denying Claims

We deny more claims before 8am than Medicare does all day.

Because nothing says "freedom" like denying claims.

We believe in a free market. We should be free to deny coverage at will.

Recision

Our death panels turn a profit. We dump customers from our rolls when they become too sick to cover. In fact our quota system makes sure of it. Just last year three of our health care insurance companies made $300 million just by kicking out 20K customers!
